The Medieval Amusement Park

fun- enjoyment, pleasure

There once was a very wonderful amusement park in Rome. Everyone came there because it was very fun. Also, the rides were very cheap, so, you didn't have to worry about spending a lot of money there. There were hundred rides to play on. People enjoyed the park so much that they rated it five stars which made others to visit.

One day ,so many visitors came that the people who worked at the park got so much money that they expanded the park to make more rides. They made rides like water tunnels which made people go down a tunnel and look for treasure chests which they could exchange with cool prizes. Also, there was a coin hunt where people go in a race where they had to find the most coins before the bell rang. There was also a fire roller coaster where images of real fire were holograms and the roller coaster went through it.

The King of Rome also went to the amusement park to see for himself what was so fun about it. He was so pleased with the rides that he gave the workers a lot more money,so, they could expand it even more. Then,the work were so happy that they promised the king free lunch for his lifetime. They changed the amusement park's name to 'The King's Carnival'.
